Dear Mr. Laubach:

Excuse me for getting right to the point, but I need your advice on a few subjects that affect us both. If I could I would ask that you give your counsel on some areas that I will promise to keep confidential.

We have several areas of mutual interest that may have a benefit to address. These areas are:

*Our in-store presentation of your product.

*Our mutual ability to tailor our mix by geographic or local consumer preference.

*Any problems that you or your people are having dealing with our people - communications, integrity, arrogance?

*Are we planning for the future properly with you?

I realize this is a somewhat unusual request, but your insight may help both of us improve. If you don't feel comfortable with replying, please don't hesitate ignoring this request. If we can improve and you have advice, please respond.

Thank you for your support and partnership.

Sincerely,

William R. Fields
